The community of Shippensburg, Pa., was shocked yesterday morning by the report that Mrs. Strike, wife of John Strike, and who, it was supposed, bad died Sunday evening, had returned to life. Mrs. Strike, who has been an invalid for a number of years, but was able to walk around up until Saturday, became seriously ill Sunday, and Sunday evening her physician supposed she was dying when he left her bedside Sometime later she seemingly passed away, and Undertaker Barbour was summoned to prepare the body for burial. Upon examining the body, while there seemed to be evidence of death, Mr. Barbour thought he detected a twitch about the eyes and other indi-ostions of life, and, therefore, decided not to embaim the body until yester-day morning, but had it prepared and laid on the cooling-board. Yesterday morning be, in company with his assistant, went to the house for the pur-pose of embalming the body, but to his surprise found it warm under the arms He immediately summoned the phy-sician, who found there was a slight

She was immediately placed in hed, and warm botiles and other restorstives administered; and, while she still remains in a state of coma, it was stated that yesterday evening she opened her eyes slightly. The disease from which she had been suffering was diagnosed as acute nephritis. This is the first case known in that section of a person lying in a trance.

The book conveys the impression that he relations between the Emperor and the Countess have continued since his which he resents.

The Countess is now a woman o about 45, and still very attractive. She is related through her husband to half the nobility of Germany. Count Her-mann's younger brother is German Aubassador at Rome, the former Military Governor of Berlin and one of the mos intimate cronies of the Kaiser, Another Count of Wedel is Grand Master of the Horse to the Emperor; while a third is his Minister of the Household. The divorced Countess is remembered as the author of a paper in a well-known American magazine on the "Marriages of American Women to German Noble men," which held up the manners and customs in the higher walks of Teutonic life to the severest innuendoes.

BURNED ON A STOVE .- James Edward Cosby was nearly smothered and burned to death while taking a bath Sunday morning at his home, in Richmond. He lighted a gas stove to warm the room and, inhaling the gas, fell into the tub of water in a semi-unconscious condition. Still hardly conscious, Mr. Cosby got out of the bath tub and went to the gas jet to turn off the gas. In attempting to do this he fell over the stove, and the latter, now almost red hot, tilted over and rested on his left side. The pain was so intense that the young man, though hardly conscious, groaned and almost shricked. One of his sisters heard his cries and rushed to the bathroom. Finding the door locked from the inside, she ran for an axe and broke the door open. She then saw her brother prostrate on the floor, with the flesh on his left side sizzling from the heat of the gas stove, which was resting sgainst the body. Miss Cosby quickly pushed the stove away and called for help. The young man is in a
